

S.W.A.P. Suggested Extension Activities

Connect the safety messages of the Spring Water Awareness Program to the language and art curricula. Try the following activities with your students.

Safety Art Challenge

Challenge your students to design effective and eye catching posters that communicate the S.W.A.P. messages. Post them around the school to help raise awareness in other classes.

School Safety Announcements

Have students write safety notes that can be read on the school announcements to communicate the S.W.A.P. messages to the rest of the school.

News Release

Students can write press releases for their local newspaper that tells people about the dangers of spring flooding and how children and adults can stay away to stay safe.

Skits or Commercials

Groups of students can write and perform commercials that teach people about the S.W.A.P. messages.
